The Family Corner

“If a family practices service within the family on a daily basis, the faith practice will be more easily applied in the world. The reason service learning is now found in schools is that service fulfills a basic component of a human being. We want to give to others. This is basic to life. With websites, blogs and online video possibilities, people are more easily connected to those in need.

Volunteering is a culturally acceptable way to spend time. Families who learn to help one another daily and translate that into helping in community need to remember that they are serving God by serving others.”

“Family Daily Living Faith Practices” by Christy Olson
